Dave Baughman "The Outdoor Insider"

The big news in my area was the closure to sport fishing for spring Chinook on the Icicle River, and the opening of fishing to the tribes. This has created a lot of controversy and disappointment with recreational fishermen. There are a lot of other alternatives for anglers, and I hope to try some of them soon.

If you have been following the news about the spring salmon fishery on the Icicle River this season, you can understand the frustrations of recreational anglers. Although this is pretty much a local fishery, due to the lack of shore access and number of boats that float the river, it still points to some larger issues. Many will blame the WDFW and the National Fish Hatchery. There was a break in a water line at the hatchery, and an emergency pump system had to be erected to get the fish ladder working so the salmon could be collected in the holding ponds. Even with this delay there appeared to be enough fish to allow for a recreational and tribal fishery this year. The hatchery needed 1,000 for brood stock, and that was going make perhaps 700 available to sport and tribal purposes. Well, the WDFW delayed the opening and 1,200 to 1,300 fish rushed into the ponds. There just weren't more fish on the way this year. The WDFW decided not to open it to sport fishing, and the Coville Tribe started fishing on Friday. This outcome is difficult to understand and is complicated by Treaty Fishing Rights. Before people condemn the tribes, I want to remind them that the Coville Tribe contributes to many fisheries in the region. They operated a hatchery at Bridgeport that releases millions of summer run and spring salmon into the Columbia each year. They release close to 50,000 triploid rainbow trout into Rufus Woods Reservoir that sport anglers enjoy catching, and the coho fishery in the fall on the Icicle is the result of a project conducted by the Yakima Tribe. No one is happy how things came together this year, and steps are being taken to prevent it from happening again. Unfortunately, no one is going to come out of this looking good.

I got a text from John Calder at Mark's Marine in Hayden, Idaho, saying that the new Thunder Jet Luxor that was being built for me at the production facility in Clarkston, Washington had arrived at the dealership. It included several photos of the interior and exterior of the finished boat. The next step will be the rigging at the Mark's Marine shop. Which will be extensive. The Mercury motor package came with the boat, but the Minn Kota bow mount needs to be installed, along with the lithium and deep cell batteries. There will be four Garmin fish finders in the boat, including the latest available Live Scan. They had a "Lund" style live well installed in the boat at the factory, which is absolutely the best. It will be equipped with Scotty downriggers and Folbe rod holders. There is a lot of work yet to do with the mounting of the electronics and other features, and it will still be a week or so before I can visit the dealership and get an orientation ride to go over everything.

A few weeks ago, my friends James and Ryan and I fished for walleye with guide Leon Stafford below Little Goose Dam on the Snake River. We had a great time and caught some very nice walleye and even got to spend time in the scenic Palouse River. We liked this so much that we traveled there again last Thursday. We launched at the Texas Rapids Recreation Area, and although there was a pretty good breeze blowing we drove up to the fishing area right below the dam. We put out a variety of crank baits and began trolling. The wind began blowing even harder, and although we thought this was getting a little bit crazy we saw a couple of other boats on the water. Still, it was difficult to manage the boat, so we ran back down to the launch. We thought we might find better conditions off the Palouse River mouth and stopped at the marina that is just across the river from there. We found the wind just as bad here. While there we noticed some anglers holding up some catfish. They had a wheelbarrow full of big ones. This week's photo is of these anglers and their catch.

One of the questions that I am asked most frequently, due to my proximity to Lake Wenatchee, is if there is going to be a sockeye season on the lake. The return of sockeye to our region is something that is watched closely by anglers. The popularity of this fishery exceeds the interest in summer run salmon, particularly since the summer run salmon numbers have dropped significantly. Last year the summer runs season was curtailed and only open for a shore time in certain "bubble fisheries". Last year the return of sockeye to the Columbia was forecast at 350,000 and the actual return was 168,000. This was enough fish to see the Brewster Pool packed with boats. The forecast for sockeye to Lake Wenatchee was 94,000 and 64,000 showed up. This year the forecast is for 85,000 to the lake. They need under 24,000 to pass over Tumwater Dam for escapement. You can check out the graph from the Fish Passage Center on my Facebook page, FishingMagician.com.

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife has issued an update of the salmon steelhead seasons for the Lower Columbia River. These seasons begin as early as June 16th. Summer run salmon and steelhead counted in the summer run data from the Fish Passage Center are just starting to hit Bonneville Dam. It is good to know what the various openers and rules are for each section of the main stem Columbia River are described in the news release. The sections detailed in the update include the area from Megler-Astoria Bridge to Bonneville Dam; Bonneville Dam to the Dalles Dam; to the Highway 395 Bridge in Pasco. There probably aren't any surprises for anglers that annually fish these sections of the lower Columbia. It is always a good idea to review these seasons and rules just to be sure that they are consistent with past seasons. As many anglers are aware, the return of summer run salmon to the Columbia River is anticipated to be down significantly.

EVANS INDUCTED INTO WVSO HALL OF FAME | From WVSO Media

EAST WENATCHEE, Wash. — On May 30 Wenatchee Valley's Super Oval had the honor of inducting "The Legend" Garrett Evans" into the WVSO Hall of Fame.

Evans' motorsports career spans more than 50 years and includes an incredible accomplishment—winning races at WVSO in each of the last six decades.

When he, along with his parents Leonard and Joan Evans, brought new life to the Super Oval in 1999, his vision was to bring major national events to Wenatchee. That dream has become a reality.

For the past 27 years, Garrett has been part of the ownership group at WVSO. He helped launch a Super Late Model series in the Northwest when none existed, creating opportunities for racers throughout the region. On the track, his accomplishments are just as impressive, with more than 400 career feature victories across nearly every corner of the country. Yet through it all, he has always called the Wenatchee Valley home.

With all he has done for the sport, the facility, and the racing community, we felt that on such a special night it was only fitting to induct Garrett into the very Hall of Fame that he helped create.

HAMLIN CHARGES FROM REAR TO WIN AT MICHIGAN
By Holly Cain; NASCAR Wire Service

Brooklyn, Mich. (June 7, 2026) — On an action-packed afternoon where perseverance proved as important as raw speed, veteran Denny Hamlin pulled off an amazing run from the rear of the starting grid to claim the checkered flag taking his second consecutive and fourth overall trophy in the NASCAR Cup Series' FireKeepers Casino 400 at a sold-out Michigan International Speedway.

The massive effort marked Hamlin's 63rd career win – tying him with the late Kyle Busch for ninth-place on the NASCAR Cup Series all-time wins list. And as importantly, the showing – combined with points leader Tyler Reddick's first DNF of the season – cut Hamlin's deficit to Reddick nearly in half. He now trails him by only 51 points with 11 races left to settle the NASCAR Cup Series regular season title.

Hamlin, 45, celebrated the milestone victory – his third of the year and second consecutive last-to-first efforts in as many weeks - by waving a black and white No. 18 "Kyle Busch" flag outside his driver's window driving around the track for a victory lap – capped by a long burnout.

The ode to the two-time series champ Busch, Hamlin's former teammate who passed away suddenly two weeks ago from pneumonia and sepsis, received huge applause and a standing ovation from the massive grandstand crowd.

A nine-car chain-reaction wreck early in the race eliminated championship leader, and the 2024 Michigan winner Reddick from contention. Another dramatic incident with frontrunners Chase Elliott and Christopher Bell with 51 laps to go necessitated a 20-minute red flag to repair the track wall.

The NASCAR Cup Series moves to another of its traditional venues next week, Pocono (Raceway, for Sunday's Great American Getaway 400 at the famous 2.5-miler.

NEWGARDEN CONTINUES SHORT OVAL REIGN

MADISON, Ill. (Sunday, June 7, 2026) – The king of World Wide Technology Raceway has returned to his throne.

Josef Newgarden won for the sixth time in 11 starts at the 1.25-mile oval just across the Mississippi River from St. Louis, enduring two rain delays during the race Sunday night to win a feverish, fascinating Bommarito Automotive Group 500 presented by Axalta and Valvoline. The victory was Newgarden's second this season, as he also won in March at the 1-mile Phoenix Raceway oval.

The two-time NTT INDYCAR SERIES champion has captured 15 of his 34 career victories on ovals shorter than 1.5 miles. This win came as he was still recovering from a lower leg injury suffered two weeks ago in the 110th Indianapolis 500 presented by Gainbridge.

"Great job to the group," Newgarden said. "Just a methodical night. We had a good car to start. It wasn't perfect, but it really came to us just when we needed it. It was a track position day."

Newgarden, who started eighth, drove his No. 2 Astemo Team Penske Chevrolet to victory by .6613 of a second over the No. 28 Delaware Life Honda of fellow Indianapolis 500 winner Marcus Ericsson, who still managed a season-best finish. Christian Rasmussen finished a season-best third in the No. 21 Splenda Chevrolet of ECR.

Rinus VeeKay continued the trend of season-best finishes by ending up fourth in the No. 76 Juncos Hollinger Racing Chevrolet, with Scott McLaughlin rounding out the top five in the No. 3 DEX Team Penske Chevrolet that featured a throwback livery honoring the 2009 Indianapolis 500-winning car driven by Helio Castroneves.

Newgarden took the lead for good on Lap 221 after a spirited duel with Rasmussen that began almost immediately after a restart on Lap 212. Rasmussen dove under Newgarden in Turn 1 for the lead on Lap 215, but Newgarden drove past Rasmussen in Turn 3 for the top spot on Lap 219.
